

THE AMERICAN MISSIONARY.

VOL. LIII.

APRIL, 1899.

No. 2.

REV. MICHAEL E. STRIEBY, D. D.

Michael E. Strieby was born in Ohio, September, 1815. He died at Clifton Springs, N. Y., March 16, 1899. He was, therefore, in his eighty-fourth year of age when he passed away. But little is said when the mere record of these two great events in personal existence is chronicled. Between the sunrise and sunset there lie the long, weary hours of life's busy, restless, struggling day. The toil, the sacrifice, the sorrow, the disappointment, and to Dr. Strieby the splendid victory of accomplished work, are brought together in the compass of his life. Certain salient points stand out in peculiar prominence. His early education was secured at two institutions in Ohio—Hudson College and Oberlin College. He was graduated in the first class that ever completed the college curriculum at Oberlin College, in 1842. The years of his scholastic life were years of intense excitement and profound upheaval. The anti-slavery agitation was rapidly gaining a hearing and followers. Oberlin was the focal point of six underground railroads. Almost constantly a stream of Negroes—men, women and children—escaping from the horrors of American slavery, passed along these lines through Oberlin on their way to Canada. Young Strieby was a practical reformer as well as a theorist. He took a hand in helping to freedom these poor, hunted black people. He not infrequently delivered addresses in various neighborhoods proclaiming the righteousness of the anti-slavery movement. Opposition was often pronounced, and sometimes violent. This only stirred the vigorous, athletic young man to more intense antagonism to the crime of human slavery.

The influence of these college experiences, both in the classroom and in the practical application of the instruction he received to the immediate solution of the problems of human freedom, was evident through his whole life.

Dr. Strieby was a most successful pastor. After graduating from Oberlin Seminary, he became pastor of the church at Mt. Vernon, Ohio. Here he served for eleven delightful and successful years. Dr.

Strieby spoke of these years of service in his early ministry at Mt. Vernon a few weeks before his death to a friend. The recollections he held were very tender and abiding.

From Mt. Vernon Dr. Strieby went to Syracuse, N. Y., where he organized the Plymouth Congregational Church. Here again he proved his special ability as a pastor and preacher. After a pastorate of eleven and a half years in the Plymouth Church he was called, in 1864, to a Corresponding Secretaryship of the American Missionary Association. It is a remarkable fact that he did not enter this service until he was forty-nine years of age. His larger and most permanent work was accomplished after middle life. This place he occupied with distinguished success until, by his own request, he was permitted to retire in 1896, and became Honorary Secretary.

Although the American Missionary Association had been organized for many years before Dr. Strieby became a secretary, still the early period of his administration included years of great privation and hardship. He was often at the front immediately after the war encouraging despondent teachers, gathering about him a great mass of Negroes just freed from bondage, seeking to inspire them with purposes of self-control and self-direction. But the development of the work of the American Missionary Association is written in history, and well known to the Christian and philanthropic public. Michael E. Strieby was a tremendous factor in this development. No one can measure his influence.

And to him it was given to see the full and complete victory of the principles for which he suffered in early manhood, and to whose realization he struggled with tireless energy in middle life. Those who opposed the cause of human freedom, for which he stood from first to last, came over to his side. He proved himself not only a courageous reformer, a soldier for righteousness, but a prophet, a seer. He foresaw the splendid outcome of the apparently weak and ineffective agitations into which he threw himself in early life with an abandon of devotion. "He steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem." His Jerusalem was the physical, intellectual and moral freedom of down-trodden races. The journey thither must involve hardship and sacrifice. It might involve martyrdom. With an intelligent and appreciative sense of the future he still pressed forward with patient and tireless purpose toward this Jerusalem. Who can question that his unseen Lord walked beside him, giving him courage in times of greatest threatening, and kindling within him the large and splendid hope which he always manifested in times of greatest discouragement!

The distinctive characteristic of Dr. Strieby was that of vigor.

Physically he was a large, splendidly developed man. Intellectually he was uncompromising in his self-mastery. Habits of doubtful self-indulgence he always avoided because they interfered with the free development of vigorous manhood. He was uncompromising in his opposition to wrong, though always considerate of the views of others. He took his position and maintained it with the vigor of physical courage and strong intellectual conviction. His calm, well-balanced judgment led him to the selection of that which was wise and effective, and his determined moral purpose inspired him to pursue the path toward the accomplishment of this end with indomitable energy.

Still he was a man of broad and charitable judgment, even of those who radically differed from him. His spirit was gentle and loving. He eliminated from the consideration of great questions all personal interests. He always held the impartial position of judicial judgment. His administration of those in the field of mission service was such as to attract and hold the missionaries in bonds of loving friendship. And yet even in his gentle considerateness there was the vigor of his great and magnificent purposes.

Another writes of him: "When the full historic presentation of the great revolution accomplished against the slaveholders' oligarchy is fitly written up his pen and his tongue and his hand will be found to have been mighty factors in this great upheaval." The co-mingling of gentleness and determination of charitable consideration for the opinions of others and courageous maintenance of his own convictions compelled for him the esteem even of his opponents. These are the qualities that brought the magnificent results of his life work.

The American Missionary Association will miss his wise counsel and his loving and tender companionship. The whole body of Congregational Churches will mourn his loss and find no other one who can fill his place. He was prominent on boards of trustees in different institutions, notably in that of his own Alma Mater, Oberlin College. His large views of educational problems and practical knowledge concerning the administration of institutional life made him a valuable member.

Dr. Strieby was one of the charter members of the Belleville Avenue Congregational Church in Newark, N. J. The funeral services were held in this Church on the Sabbath of March 19th. In many of the institutions of the American Missionary Association at the time of the funeral, memorial services were held by teachers and pupils. Telegrams of affectionate regard were received from many friends in the North and from those who occupy these mission fields of the Association. Among those who spoke their tribute of regard and love at the funeral was Rev. Dr. William B. Brown, a college classmate and life-long friend of Dr. Strieby. His words were most tender and loving and expressed the feelings of one who had been intimately associated during this long period with Dr. Strieby. Indeed, the service as a whole seemed rather the coronation than the funeral of this beloved and honored man. He has fought the good fight and kept the faith and has received the crown laid up for the righteous.

"Servant of God, well done!
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy.

"The voice at midnight came,
He started up to hear;
A mortal arrow pierced his frame—
He fell, but felt no fear.

"Tranquil amidst alarms,
It found him on the field;
A veteran slumbering on his arms
Beneath his red-cross shield.

"Soldier of Christ, well done!
Praise be thy new employ;
And, while eternal ages run,
Rest in thy Saviour's joy."

THE TRIBUTE OF A FRIEND.

REV. WILLIAM HAYES WARD, D.D.

I have known Dr. Strieby for nearly thirty years. He was one of the colony from the First Church which organized the Belleville Avenue Congregational Church of Newark, N. J. Soon afterward Dr. Ray Palmer and myself became members of the same church, and we were thus brought into close and affectionate fellowship. The death of Dr. Palmer, in 1887, removed one strand of the triple cord, and now Dr. Strieby's death ends the earthly companionship. My long membership in the Executive Committee of the American Missionary Association has given me knowledge of him in the line of his official duties, as well as of his more private sympathies and activities.

A tall, firm-built man, Dr. Strieby had the massive, physical basis of power which often commands more respect than it is worth. His intellect was clear, strong and ever active. He had an enquiring mind. He had no prejudices to be overcome, because he simply wanted to know the truth; and this made him always tolerant of others, rather interrogative than overbearing, very ready to listen to the views of others and to answer by suggestion rather than opposition or denial. In counsel he was free, clear, positive and weighty. I have known no other man whose wisdom and experience have carried so much influence in the meetings of the committee. Indeed, his thirty-five years of experience in the great work of the Association in organizing and building up its educational system in the South, gave him a knowledge of men and methods that was unrivaled. Under his direction the Association reached its great development, and it was his wise and judicious correspondence that secured the princely gift of the Hand Fund. The work of the Association, beginning with the little schools at Hampton and Nashville, following the army as it occupied Memphis, Atlanta, New Orleans, Mobile, Savannah and Charleston, and developing into a great system of colleges and normal schools which have set the example for other Christian bodies to follow, this is his noble monument, and not some town or building that has been honored with his name.

I have said that Dr. Strieby was a tolerant man. Not every reformer is tolerant of those who differ from him. It was not wilfulness, but a love of truth that made him a reformer. So his love of truth made him broad. He was a man of much reading in history, literature and theology. He thought much on public questions that affected the Church or the State, although he felt that his official position did not permit him to be a combatant on any public arena where the Church he served was divided. He was always looking for that "more light" which as a young man he found, before most others found it, on the question of slavery. Yet he never wavered, with all his younger or older enthusiasm, from the solid Christian faith which was his hope of immortality.

Dr. Strieby's tolerance made him an unusually pleasant companion in work. He was a model parishioner and real helper to his younger and less experienced pastors. In the office of the Association he was never dictatorial or fault-finding. He trusted his trusty associates or subordinates, assumed that they were doing well, excused their mistakes and quarreled with nobody.

Peaceable, benign, wise, progressive, even radical, and no less wise when radical, round-minded, wide-looking, large-planning, he was the guiding spirit of our Congregational Churches in the most Christlike work they have undertaken for downtrodden but rising humanity. God needed, and so God found, such a man for such a work.

RESOLUTIONS IN HONOR OF DR. STRIEBY.

The following resolutions were adopted in the Congregational Rooms, New York, by representatives of the several missionary societies of the Congregational denomination in honor and loving appreciation of Secretary M. E. Strieby, D.D.:

CONGREGATIONAL ROOMS, New York, March 22, 1899.

At a meeting of the officers representing the several Missionary Boards of our denomination, having offices in the United Charities Building, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, Our heavenly Father has taken unto Himself, from our circle, the Rev. M. E. Strieby, D.D., LL.D., for thirty-five years a beloved and honored Secretary of the American Missionary Association, and for fifty-seven years an eminently able and useful minister of the gospel; be it Resolved: First, That we, his brethren and associates in the common work of the Master, bear our united testimony to his earnest consecration to the Master's service, and his conscientious faithfulness to the great interests committed to his care—a faithfulness exhibited in unstinted devotion of time, money, thought and prayer that the great missionary work, especially those needy and oppressed races which had from his early youth been upon his heart, might receive the sympathy and support of all the churches and the richest blessing of God.

Resolved: Secondly, That we thank God for the blessed opportunity of working for a time by the side of one so noble in character, so brotherly in sympathy, so wise in counsel, so earnest in labor, and so successful in laying foundations in the way of schools, colleges and churches for millions of our needy brethren, especially our colored brethren at the South, most dear to his heart and the heart of our Lord.

Resolved: Thirdly, That we deeply sympathize with our brethren, the pastors and members of churches, and teachers and pupils in schools under the care of the American Missionary Association, and it is our earnest prayer that the spirit of our departed brother—their devoted friend as well as ours—may abide with them, inspiring them to purity of life and faithful service.

Resolved: Fourthly, That we most affectionately tender to the family of our brother our sympathy in view of their great loss, and it is our prayer that our heavenly Father, by His blessed presence, will sustain them under their heavy affliction, will sanctify it to their well-being as well as ours, until we meet him again in that land where our Redeemer welcomes his faithful servants, and where they shall dwell with him evermore.

PORTO RICO, OUR NEXT FIELD.

BY SECRETARY A. F. BEARD.

It was early in January when, fifty miles away, we sighted the mountain ranges of Porto Rico. As we neared the coast, these grouped themselves attractively in their picturesqueness. San Juan, the capital city, "set upon a hill," Oriental in appearance as it is in its architecture, was a very pretty sight from the bay. Seen from without, with its houses of many colors and red tiled roofs which rise street above street on the hill, which slopes like the back of a whale, with both sides to the sea, it was a picture that ceased to be beautiful only when distance no longer lent its enchantment. Once within it, we find a dirty town, with narrow streets. The houses are occupied on the ground floors by people herded together in narrowest quarters, and living (if it may be called living) amid ever-during smells of great strength. The class of people superior to this kind of habitation live in the upper rooms of the two-story houses. The lower rooms, when not occupied for dwellings, are little shops or stores. Those who dwell in the apartments above must pass through halls or courts which would shock our notions of decency. The inner courtyard is usually small, and contains in close conjunction the cesspools and cisterns from which comes the drinking water, and this is the source of many epidemics. The town, as might be expected, is very stirring with certain kinds of insect life. It was David Harum who said: "A reasonable amount of fleas is good for a dog. They keep him from broodin' on bein' a dog." They may have this effect on these poor people.

We found imposing buildings in San Juan. The residences of the military governor and other high officers would attract attention in any city of this size. Those familiar with towns in Spain, or even in Italy, would recognize San Juan as of the regulation pattern.

The general aspect of the Island of Porto Rico is that of a picturesque, hilly landscape. Its tropical vegetation is abundant and varied. It is no uncommon sight to see coffee, sugar cane, tobacco, orange, lime, guava, banana, cocoanut, all growing luxuriantly from one point, and many other trees, with orchids, plants and flowers. The mountains, which run from east to west through the middle of the island, are put in artistically, as though their beauty were sufficient reason for their existence. Covered with verdure to their very tops, there is no frown nor hardness on their faces. In the beautiful plains below, the soil is rich beyond any signs of exhaustion. During the time that we were there the skies were always clear and the breezes from the sea invigorating. It was one constant glory of sunshine.

THE HARBOR OF SAN JUAN, PORTO RICO.

With the rise of every morning it poured out its splendor, and with each successive hour beamed forth its brilliance until the lingering sun passed through the gates of day. Daily the same, without a fleck to cloud the landscape and with no excessive heat. With such a climate the year round, it was not strange we did not see a house in Porto Rico with window panes. There are shutters and blinds. Neither stoves nor fire-places are in the houses, except for cooking. Practically, one season in the year, seed time and harvest, the sowing and the reaping may be when you please to have them; and all this when the people at home, in zero weather, were wondering if their coal would hold out, and were being greeted by everyone with the words—themselves half-congealed—“Is it cold enough for you?” No one takes note of weather in Porto Rico; it is like the air we breathe—expected. With conditions like these it would seem that the people ought to enjoy more than the ordinary blessings of life, and ought to be found easily living in comfort. This, however, is far from the fact.

A census of Porto Rico lately taken gives the population as 890,000, which may be divided in round numbers as follows: White, 500,000; colored, 390,000, of whom about 90,000 are blacks. This gives a dense population of nearly 243 to the square mile. The whites comprise the Spaniards and Porto Ricans of Spanish blood. The colored are of all shades, chiefly burnt sienna, and mostly straight-haired. The blacks are Negroes, pure and simple. The whites may be divided into the ruling class, numbering, perhaps, 100,000, and the peasants, or gibaros, 400,000. The colored are mixed (mestizos)

The peasants, or gibaros, with the mestizos and blacks, together form the class of unskilled laborers. They are miserably poor, and literally live from hand to mouth. Their cabins, or "shacks" are set on poles driven into the ground, the floor being raised a few feet. The average household furniture consists of a few dishes and utensils made of calabash shells, or gourds, with some rude earthenware. A little patch of land for the plantain grove, or some corn or sweet potatoes, possibly a cow, a pig, and a diminutive horse of gothic architecture, form the property and provision for life. The people seldom get any meat and but little bread for food, as none of the cereals grow well there. As a result, they are as a class anaemic and hungry-looking. Their staple food is the banana, which, for steady diet, does not put a great deal of iron into the blood. Most of their food grows on trees. Here they are, more than one-half of the population in dense ignorance, too ignorant to be discontented with this existence, which in its condition is pitiful beyond expression.

Out of 890,000 there are 111,380 who can read, but of these 14,513 cannot write. Nearly 800,000 are without knowledge beyond that of their own hut. "My people perish for want of knowledge."

THE MARKET AT YAUCO, DWELLINGS OF THE POOR ON THE HILLS.

In every town there are certain people with varying attainments in education, who hold the more responsible positions in life, but they have entirely failed to realize any responsibility for this appalling mass of ignorance about them. One-half of the population is in towns. All of the towns are built on the same general plan, and in most of them four of the five senses are constantly offended. Odors are always in evidence. As to feeling, the opportunities for the study of entomology are unbounded. As to taste, everything is saturated with garlic. The sight was hurt constantly in the wan and pinched faces of the poor, and in their apparently needless poverty in a land where plenty would come easily, and in their ignorance of the fact that the lower animals are God's creatures. They lash their stunted horses without mercy; they prick their oxen cruelly with goads. They do not, however, mean to be cruel; they are a very humane people to their own neighbors who are sufferers. They show affection for children, though not care for them. They simply have the heritage of ignorance for generations. They have not been to the school, nor to any church which instructed them, nor have they had wise parents and Christian training in good homes; and yet they are an interesting people, alert, quick-witted, polite, graceful. But they are low down, being ignorant.

As to government, the island is divided into seven districts, with a county seat in each. These are as yet under Spanish laws and governed by local authorities. Each town has now, however, a United States Commandant and a garrison of soldiers to make sure of good government in this time of transition. We found these Commandants high-toned officers, often Christian men, seeking the betterment of the people. They furnished us with interpreters and introductions to the schools—such schools as they have—and gave us every facility in our investigation.

We found churches, but no people in them. Here is the Church which for four hundred years has had unhindered opportunity, and here is the fruitage. This is not to say that the Roman Catholic Church has not a record of many eminent Christians in its communion. But as a system, especially when united with the State, it must answer the question, What has it done for the general elevation of mankind, in the religious conditions of Italy, France, Spain, Mexico, South America, Cuba and Porto Rico? Everywhere it is a mournful story. There may be good saints where there is a bad system; but a bad system does not make good saints.

The Archbishop told us that his mission in Porto Rico was to put the Catholic Church on an American basis. This is, I suppose, to introduce a church life which has been modified by our public schools and by contact with the ideas of Protestant life. If he shall succeed in putting "Americanism" in Porto Rico he will make a better people, and they sadly need help. While these people cannot be said to be under any church influence to any extent, they are not opposed to religion. They are simply in ignorance. "For behold, darkness has covered the land and gross darkness the people."

A STREET IN SANTURCE, PORTO RICO—A SUBURB OF SAN JUAN.

We visited many schools in many places. With one exception we found no building constructed and set apart for educational use. Public schools are in private houses. In every town the Spaniards had substantial buildings for the military, which kept the people down, but no schoolhouses. Certainly Spain went away none too soon. One could but think of the verse of Longfellow:

"Were half the power that fills the world with terror,
Were half the wealth bestowed on camps and courts
Given to redeem the mind from human error,
There were no need of arsenals and forts."

The teacher of the private school is paid from the public fund, but he furnishes the schoolroom and all that therein is, and this does not require much wealth. Seldom did we find in any schools desks, and there were only backless benches. One reading book sufficed for a class, being passed from one pupil to another. The schools are ungraded and but a small fraction of the pupils get beyond reading and writing, and these pupils are the exceptional few. The most interesting school we visited was taught by a colored principal with two white assistants. The pupils were of all colors common to man. Some of them were sufficiently advanced to compute compound interest, this kind of interest being most in use. A teacher who has the degree of A. B. informed us that if we would come to-morrow morning he would show us the progress of his classes. The first recitation was a catechetical lesson in geometry, in which the boys gave in regular order and turn definitions of lines and angles. When sent to the blackboard they could not go beyond drawing parallel lines and making different kinds of angles. There were no problems to be solved. A principal made a cigarette, lighted and smoked it while hearing his class. The instruction was chiefly without books for the pupils, the teacher giving out the lesson to be learned by the pupils by rote. When examined, as they stood in their places, each gave his own answer to the catechetical instruction. It reminded me of some teaching nearer home when catechetical teaching was common. "Can you tell me, child, who made you?" Number one, to whom this question belonged, did not happen to be present, and number two replied: "The little boy that God made is not here to-day."

A SHACK—A PEASANT'S RESIDENCE.

I come now to speak of homes. When Christ came to dwell upon the earth he said: "I am come that ye might have life, and that ye might have it more abundantly." From that day, whatever have been the triumphs of Christianity, and whatever it has added to the civilization and welfare of mankind, it has nothing better to show for itself and for its divinity than a genuine Christian home, where God is recognized as the common Father, and where love reigns and is the master teacher. The difference between a Porto Rico shack and the Indian's tepee, or the Negro's desolate cabin and a Christian woman's parlor, fathoms the secret of life, which is the secret of Christianity and measures a distance of centuries. The one is Christian civilization; the other is barbarism.

In our sense of the word "home" there are none among the masses of the people of Porto Rico. What would reconcile us to death, would make them supremely happy. This for present conditions. Our first inquiry was: Has anything been done since we took possession of the island to help these poor people? We were the first to make anything like an exhaustive study of the island in missionary interests, but we found that the American Bible Society had one earnest missionary there who was preaching the accepted faith. We also found that the Young Men's Christian Association had in San Juan a capable minister of the gospel, who was organizing Christian forces among our officers and soldiers. In many ways he is very useful. The military governor, General Henry, gives his position and influence to all things that are good. He is not only an able administrator for civil improvements, but is a man who honors the Christian faith. The large theater in San Juan is secured for religious services and well attended. Sunday-school is held there every Sunday morning. Sermons are preached in Spanish and English. American officers and their wives sing in the choir. The native people listen with marked attention, and it is more than the interest of curiosity, for the service has been continued now for months.

What is the greatest need in Porto Rico? It is answered in one word, "Salvation." The people need to know the truth and be made free from the influences which degrade and destroy them—in short, to be saved from the causes of degradation. But any one can see that it is not enough to preach against such darkness as this. Righteousness needs knowledge as much as knowledge needs righteousness. Christianity assumes intelligence and depends upon it. A Christian Church which is to have any future must be composed of intelligent people. For this we must begin with the young people before the controlling habits are formed, when they can be influenced day by day. We must put Christianity into receptive life while it is receptive. The hope for the Christianity of these people in the generations to come must be through Christian schools; schools with earnest Christian teachers in different centres; schools where the Bible shall be the first lesson of every day; schools furnished with modern appointments and appliances, graded and provided with text-books, not catechisms; schools which shall be object lessons to the people, while experienced teachers in their home life can also show how homes are to be made the centres of refining and civilizing influence.

We are confident that the people are ready for these schools.

Everywhere they said "Come." "Come, and come now," said one, "and we will give you 100 pupils the first day." "God give me life to see it," said another. There appeared to be no hindrances now to our work among them. Both in the church and schools we believe we shall be sure to have ready and eager learners.

ON THE MILITARY ROAD FROM SAN JUAN.

We shall not make Anglo-Saxons of these people. It would not be well to try. Where there is summer the year round they will never walk as rapidly as we do under the sting of our blizzards. They will not have the long winter evenings in their homes and what comes from them; and since out of struggle is born strength, they may never cope with a people who have to blast rocks and shovel snow; who have to fight nature to overcome it. That which comes easily has not the value in it which belongs to a mastery that demands and compels determination, patience and courage. The difficult tasks make the scholar, thinker, and master worker. I believe that Maine will raise greater men, and more "possessive" and energetic women, than we may expect from Porto Rico. There could scarcely be greater contrasts in the environments of climate and country, and the customs which these evolve. We are not, however, responsible for the differentiations of races and people. What we are responsible for, is to remember that "other men labored" and we "have entered into their labors." We have light; they need it; we should pass it on. This is both nature and grace.

It is in accord with this call from God and from man that the American Missionary Association has already voted to plant three schools in three different interesting centres of Porto Rico, to be in full operation in October next. One of these schools will be in the north, another in the center, and the third on the west coast of the island. Christian teachers who understand the language of Porto Rico and the language of Christianity are now ready to take up the work. What is needed at once is a generous contribution of funds from those who believe that Christianity owes itself and owes those who have it, to those who have it not.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF A MOUNTAIN SCHOOL.

BY A NEW TEACHER.

By the side of a lonely mountain road a desolate log-hut, which might be taken for a hog-pen or a corn-crib, is to be seen, containing but one opening, beside the chinks in the wall, an but seven or eight feet in height.

Imagine our astonishment when within the gloom of this shed a mite of humanity was seen demurely sitting against the log walls upon a rude plank. There a youth of eighteen or twenty teaches a school of a dozen or more pupils, most of the children of the district having sought employment in a neighboring factory.

Three primary reading-books (one of them torn beyond recognition), a spelling-book, one or two advanced arithmetics for primary work, a cracked slate or two, a chair and a pine table constituted, together with the benches about the wall, almost the entire apparatus of the school.

The first class was a spelling class consisting of a little tot whose sweet face and golden hair touched our hearts. Standing before the teacher, with the white flesh of her left shoulder exposed beneath the calico slip to the damp air, she spelled out her lesson as our Puritan grandmothers did in days of old. Then three little urchins toed the mark, spelling in order the words given them. Indeed, the course of study consisted of but one other study, of arithmetic, so far as we could discover.

A tiny boy, probably five years of age, rolled tobacco about in his mouth, together with one of the girls (twelve or fourteen years of age) and the teacher. To their delight, some illustrations from Leslie's Weekly were pinned about the rude walls, and others given to them to take to their homes. The pupils had never heard of the Ten Commandments, though some of them thought they knew about the Lord's Prayer. They had never heard of Dewey. Such is the valiant Commodore's fame. However, they knew of Sampson—yet we were suspicious that he was the one whose wife was Delilah.

Those surrounded with the abundant blessings of highly-graded and well-disciplined schools (and in comparison most of our northern schools might be classed there), by such the imagination cannot depict the simplicity, poverty, meagreness and gross ignorance surrounding the district schools of the mountaineers.

Before railroads opened the region to the outside world, this "dark corner" in the Asheville plateau was scarcely half-civilized, but Christian education is slowly, but surely, sending a light into the darkness.

SKYLAND INSTITUTE, BLOWING ROCK, N. C.

In this part of the world, where God has centered so much that is beautiful in the scenery, there is much in the lives of the people that is unlovely. He has, however, opened a way by which some of His ministering children have seen the need of their fellow-beings, and consecrated women are now giving their time, money, energy and love for the betterment of the mountain people.

Upon visiting Blowing Rock at intervals of a year or more we will doubtless note more changes than are realized by those who continually work there. The houses have a more attractive appearance; there is an air about the rooms which tells of a girl's deft fingers; little things which make homes more homelike are there. There is more care in the dressing, showing a spirit of tidiness which has invaded the homes, and gives the inmates a little more touch with the rest of the world.

Above that, however, is the new light in the eyes of the people, which tells of the soul's awakening. Their lives have more happiness in them since they have learned the source of all that makes up that happiness. The noble A. M. A. has done very much for the people there, and its influence has taken in some of the summer visitors, too, who have been greatly strengthened by its work.

AMONG THE SOUTHERN CHURCHES.

SECRETARY FRANK P. WOODBURY.

It is a day of intermingled light and shadow among our Southern churches. There are accents of hope and courage and growth, and there are reports of disaster and almost despair. In some communities, the work is peaceful and prosperous. In others, churches are weakened and downcast. In some instances, from the same church, come narratives of commingled trouble and blessing.

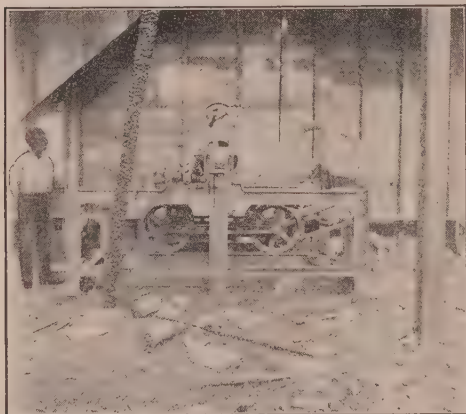

Mr. Wharton, the devoted English evangelist, has for many years done faithful service among our poor Southern churches. He held the first open-air service in New Orleans after the war. He preached from a cotton bale at the foot of Canal street for weeks together, although he was openly threatened with assassination. This year his meetings thus far have been greatly blessed. At Washington the three churches with whom he held services were strengthened and the membership of the Temple Park Church was largely increased. He went to King's Mountain, where a school church was recently formed under our consecrated principal, Miss Cathcart, who carries on the work as lay pastor. Thirty-one students were converted and a series of most interesting Bible readings was held every afternoon. The whole school work at King's Mountain has been carried forward in an intensely religious spirit. It has been from the beginning an evangelizing school, and has sent out its inspiring influences through all the neighboring regions of North and South Carolina.

KING'S MOUNTAIN, N. C.

At Wilmington, N. C., Mr. Wharton found the colored people depressed and sorrowing over the recent calamities of violence and murder. Many homes are desolated and deserted. Families have fled from the armed mobs, and some of them have never ventured back again. The ruined printing house, burned by the mob, is within two minutes' walk of the Congregational church. Its shattered printing press still stands within the roofless walls, a mute reminder of the fury which broke out in fire and blood against the poor of the city. Although the services opened in sadness, they were blessed with converts every night. Increasing numbers came till the church was packed. Mr. Wharton thinks that the recent troubles helped rather than hindered the good work. He writes as follows: "I had one of the most successful missions that I ever experienced in this Southern field among those dear people in Wilmington who were threatened with annihilation but a few weeks ago. I really think that dreadful time of trouble more than ever prepared them for a revival. The churches took hold and worked hand-in-hand together for the benefit of the mourners—Congregationalists, Baptists, Methodists and Episcopalians. During the fifteen days of these meetings there were nearly two hundred converts reported. Since the commencement of my missions this winter the total of my converts is several hundred.

Charlotte is one of the largest and most progressive towns in North Carolina. Our new church work there is being carried on energetically and successfully. The pastor has established preaching stations in neighboring places and is highly esteemed alike by the white and the colored people. He has a large Sunday-school, into which have been brought very many poor children of the city. His work is carried on under the difficulty of having no church buildings. At Paw Creek the people have only a slab arbor, with no floor, and no chance of securing warmth. This is also the case at Indian Trail, where the meetings are held in an old schoolhouse with no chimney, a shelter scarcely better than the arbor at Paw Creek. Yet, when the weather admits of meetings, these services are always attended by a good number of people. The Charlotte church is making heroic efforts towards erecting an adequate church structure in place of the small old building which they now rent. At the close of service on the last Sunday in November the collecting clubs made their reports of sums received for the purchase of bricks. These, to the surprise of everybody, amounted to $237.15. During the terribly severe weather since then, most of the people have been out of work, and the suffering among them has been great; but the congregations continue to be large, and the people are full of courage and hope.

The mountain church work at Big Creek Gap, Tenn., is much vivified and enlarged with the growth of the school, and now receives a new pastor. A warm welcome was given to Miss Ella Burdett, the evangelist, who has been associated with the pastor recently in holding a series of meetings. The snow-storms and the extreme cold did not deter the people from attendance. Some forty conversions have taken place. Miss Burdett says: "God's spirit has worked marvelously here. Monday I started out in the morning to call all day. After making eight calls, the horse I was riding became vicious, leaped into the air, and after running half a mile threw me on the rocks. My head was cut in two places and I was much bruised. The doctor said I must rest three days. This morning three girls came to my room, kneeled down with me, and asked the Lord to forgive them, and take them and help them to follow Him. Please excuse this scrawl, but my head is bandaged, so I can scarcely see. Since writing the above two more girls have come to my room and given themselves to the Lord—five in all this very day.” The whole work in Big Creek Gap, school and church, is inspired with the same fervent spirit of devotion which characterized kindred work at King’s Mountain.

A few years ago one of our most faithful and competent ministers felt drawn towards Christian service in behalf of the colored population streaming into Oklahoma Territory. He organized a church in the city of Guthrie, and the enterprise has been sustained at the expense of much labor and self-denial. A large part of the neighborhood of the church was swept by the great floods, which destroyed a great deal of property in the city. For a time it seemed as if the enterprise might have to be given up. The pastor received a call from a city church in one of the central States. But when the question of his acceptance must be decided his people rallied about him with such appeals as made him unwilling to leave them. From that day the enterprise has gone steadily forward, a flourishing Sunday-school now gathers each week, and the pastor has lately been summoned to assist in organizing a new church in a neighboring city.

The struggle to secure a shelter and a church home is a vital element in the experience of nearly all our young churches. Sometimes the effort undertakes simply a shelter of the rudest character. The people gather rough-hewed logs for the four walls of the cabin church, with its pole rafters and rough shingles, the little building being left both floorless and windowless, like that in the pine woods, near Newberry, S. C. Sometimes the church building is neat and attractive and finished like that among the mountains at Bon Air, Tenn. But in every case it is a great advantage for the church to have some building of its own for its meetings.

IN A TENT, BELOW ZERO.

BY AN INDIAN MISSIONARY.

I am writing with a lead pencil, because the only way to preserve ink from freezing in my present situation would be to drink it. I am living in a tent at Bad Nation village, forty-two miles south of Pierre. I am rebuilding the house and trying to make it comfortable and decent for our worker in this vicinity. It was absolutely necessary to rebuild, and I had to do it as the money at hand had to be squeezed hard to cover the lumber bill.

A week ago to-day it was sixteen degrees below zero, and for thirty-eight hours it was not above zero. It is needless to say that there are no flies in my tent; nor do I think there are any microbes of any kind. It is cold living out like this, but as long as I stay out I don't mind it. It is the freezing and thawing that spoils meat, vegetables and missionaries.

One benefit of this kind of a campaign is that at this time of the year daylight is short and lamplight is cheap, and I can read and write a good deal—even more than I can at home. This is probably my last night in the tent, at least I hope so. Last night it was about twenty degrees. Don't ask me if I got cold. No, my nose burned and my feet stung. However, I have got my job well on to the end, and hope the American Missionary Association will gain enough so I can study and preach more, and tent out less.

FINANCIAL.

The receipts of the Association for the five months ending Feb. 28th were $108,082.01. The receipts for the same period last year were $127,097.54—a decrease this year of $19,015.53. The decrease in donations was $8,873.90; in estates, $12,366.19, and in income, $28.26. The increase in tuition was $2,252.82.

The debt on the current year to Feb. 28th is $14,480.74. This is $4,534.78 less than the decrease in receipts compared with last year. The expenditures are kept at the very economical basis of last year. We urge pastors and friends of the Association to increase their interest in this very important work, and to make their contributions as liberal as possible to meet the pressing needs, and save the Association from another debt.

FORWARD TO PORTO RICO!

Population.....	900,000
White	500,000
Colored.....	400,000
Illiterates	500,000
Property holders	50,500

This new mission field which presses itself upon the consideration of the American Missionary Association has been set forth in the interesting article of Secretary Beard in the earlier columns of this magazine. Great care has been taken by the Executive Committee of this Association to learn the exact conditions and needs of this great island territory before any steps were taken toward occupying the field with missionary operations. A member of the Executive Committee, Rev. William Hayes Ward, D.D., and the senior Corresponding Secretary of this Association, Dr. A. F. Beard, visited Porto Rico, studying the conditions with great care. They made a complete and exhaustive tour of the island. The table at the head of this article represents the facts as ascertained by careful investigation. The need in this island territory seems almost beyond language to depict. Less than one hundred thousand of the total population of nearly a million can read and write. The influence of a debased and degraded type of Christianity has vitiated their religious life and alienated them largely from all the influence of wholesome Christianity.

Urgent letters have been received from State and local gatherings of our churches and other representative assemblies, pressing upon the American Missionary Association the duty of immediately entering this field with Christian education.

Many individuals the country through have also expressed the same earnest desire. This Association seems especially qualified for such fields as Porto Rico presents. A large body of earnest Christian young people have been trained in the missions and schools, and have been prepared in God's providence to enter these great and needy fields. They have race affiliations with many of the people of these regions. It would seem as though this was a special indication of God's purpose in the training given this race in our own land.

HOW SHALL THIS FIELD BE ENTERED?

It is the determination of the Executive Committee of this Association that a debt shall not be incurred in entering this new field. The demand from Porto Rico is imperative, the necessities are painfully evident, and the opportunity for the largest Christian service and most hopeful results all that could be wished for. Still, the present work involves the expenditure of the entire probable income of the Association. The Executive Committee have, therefore, voted to expend in Porto Rico funds which come in for this purpose. Three mission fields are selected as strategic and most important. Contributions will be received from those who believe in entering this new field with an intelligent and well-considered work. All the funds contributed for this purpose will be expended as those contributing desire. Immediate and generous contributions are asked for to meet this great responsibility which rests upon us. Checks sent to the treasurer at once for mission work in Porto Rico will be the determining factor in the development of this needy field. The mission work of the American Missionary Association is demanded at once in this island territory to lift up into decent citizenship and Christian character these hundreds of thousands, the responsibility for whose elevation rests heavily upon the Christian churches of our faith in America. We await the response of our friends in generous gifts, bidding us go forward into Porto Rico.

NEW BIRTH OF PURITANISM.

In view of these new conditions, what is our duty? We must recognize what this movement is. It is a nineteenth century new birth of Puritanism. The same stream of divine life which came to the surface of history in the Ironsides and in Cromwell, and which sent the Pilgrims to the new world, has made its appearance again among another people in a distant land.

This nineteenth century new birth of Puritanism emphasizes the same principles that the Puritanism of the sixteenth century emphasized; and it is the duty of the children of the elder Puritans to lend a hand to those who in their ideals are not far from where our fathers were three hundred years ago.

And this is exactly what this Association is doing. It is teaching the people that when they are true to themselves, they may safely trust themselves; that they should not allow their honest convictions about what is right to be overruled by any ecclesiastical bodies. This is a lesson that those people need. They have subordinated their wills to others so long that they hardly dare listen to their moral sense when it speaks. But it does speak. The duty of every man to be loyal to the inner voice is the fundamental principle of Puritanism, as well as of Protestantism. Teach a man that God speaks through his conscience, and sooner or later he will listen to the accents of that voice. We do well when we teach these people to trust the God who is revealed to them.

The principles of Puritanism are indestructible. They appear when crises demand them. They have never appeared with prophecy of greater blessing for this land, at least, than in the spontaneous uprising of those poor and humble colored men and women in the far South, who have made a stand in favor of clean living, true thinking, right acting, pure worship, and liberty limited only by the best interests of their fellow men.

REV. A. H. BRADFORD, D. D.

NEGRO PATRIOTISM.

The American Missionary Association was justified in its assumption. Here, within thirty-five years of emancipation, the boy of this so-called inferior race is able to win his way to the first places of attainment, in spite of prejudice and ostracism, by dint of sheer perseverance and self-mastery and genius.

There is still a final word to be said, and that word is along the line of the negro's loyalty to his country. It would not be a strange thing, if, in view of the laws made in the Southern States to disfranchise him and to deprive him of equal rights, the negro should have no great love for his State or for his country. He has been murdered and massacred, and burned at the stake because of his color and his race. Constitutions have been amended to deprive him of his vote. He has been thrust into the Jim Crow car, he has been insulted by laws like the Sheats law of Florida. In every possible way the dominant race in the South has sought to annoy him, to harass and vex him, and to deprive him of the fruits of liberty guaranteed him by the Constitution. But with the same cheerfulness and patience and self-control that characterized him in the days of slavery, the negro has possessed his soul, has diligently sought to work out his own destiny, has made good use of the opportunities offered him by his Northern friends, and in spite of every obstacle is conquering his way. And, best of all, he has not grown weary of well-doing, nor has he grown cold in his love for that old flag which a generation ago went marching through Georgia and Virginia and loosed him from his chains. And when the drum beat, to call once more the nation to arms, in the spring days just past, the black man enthusiastically and loyally, and in numbers out of all proportion to his race, came forth and volunteered to bear that flag of freedom to other men in bonds. From school and college, from workshop and factory, from city and plantation he came, thousands of him, and enlisted for service in the Spanish war. The nation was glad to receive him, for he made a good soldier.

Department of Christian Endeavor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR FOR ALL RACES.

BY REV. FRANCIS E. CLARK, D.D.

So far as the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor represents and exemplifies the religion of Christ, we should expect to find it striking its roots down into all soils, for Christ's religion is universal, and is barred by no fence of race or caste or color. It is, then, a hopeful and significant sign that this movement for the young has found a congenial home in every land. In Great Britain there are now nearly 6,000 societies, in Australia about 3,000, in India nearly 500, in China 100, in Madagascar 100, in Japan 50, in South Africa over 100, while the number in all these countries is constantly growing, and each year they are claiming a larger and larger proportion of the more than fifty-four thousand societies formed in all the world.

Moreover, the society knows no distinction of sex, color or previous condition of servitude. Some of the best societies are formed among the Negroes of the South and the Indians of the West. The leading bishops and church authorities in the great colored denominations of the South have heartily espoused a cause which they see is interracial and international, as well as interdenominational.

In the original home of the colored race, too, the Christian Endeavor Society is taking root. The most active church I have seen anywhere in the journeys around the world is in Durban, Natal, and is composed of Zulu Christians, the genuine variety, many of them as black as midnight. It is organized on Christian Endeavor principles, and is sometimes called the "Christian Endeavor Church." Its rule is that there shall be no drones in the hive; that no one shall join until he is willing to be a worker, and when he has joined he is forthwith put upon some committee or some special band of laborers. The result is that from this church go out every Sunday twenty-five companies of workers to hold evangelistic services in different parts of the city of Durban. This is no fugitive, spasmodic effort, but has been kept up for years. No wonder that this church can not crowd all its congregation into its church building, but has to organize an overflow meeting in a vacant field outside every Sunday.

Another race to which the American Missionary Association has devoted much attention has also taken with peculiar aptitude to the principles and methods of the Christian Endeavor movement. I refer to the Chinese. The Chinese mind understands organization. From time immemorial this race has been wedded to guilds and co-operative societies. Perhaps it is on this account that some of the most effective and enthusiastic Christian Endeavor societies in the world are found in China. Foochow has long been a centre of this work, under the lead of the wise and aggressive missionaries of the American Board. Canton and vicinity is finding its way into the northern and central sections of the great disintegrating empire. Conventions of much power and spiritual profit have been held by these societies, and in proportion to the number of Christians the numbers in attendance have been much larger than at the great conventions in America.

It was a significant and interesting fact reported at the recent anniversary at Concord that the society that ranks third in proportionate benevolence, according to its members, in all the world, is a Chinese Christian Endeavor Society of San Francisco.

The Indians and the Mountain Whites afford equally good material for the making of stalwart, faithful Christian Endeavorers; they find help and strength in the consecration meetings; they have to work through the various committees; they get courage and joy from one world-wide fellowship. All these facts, and they might be indefinitely extended, should quicken the interest of Congregational Endeavorers in the races for which the American Missionary Association is working; should lead them to feel their kinship with black and red and yellow, while they give and work and pray for them, and in every practical way answer the question as our Lord would have it answered: Who is my neighbor?

A WORTHY EXAMPLE.

The Secretary of the South African Christian Endeavor Union is Miss Lucilla Sprigg, daughter of Secretary Gordon Sprigg, until recently the Prime Minister of the Cape of Good Hope, the greatest of the British possessions in Africa. Miss Sprigg, however, is not content with a life of ease and social pleasure in Cape Town, but has gone to live in a Kaffir hut near Londale in the interior of Cape Colony, to do missionary work among the blacks.

These Kaffir huts are anything but potential residences, being of mud, plastered with mud and boasting a floor of mud, while the "red Kaffirs" themselves, as the heathen nations are called, with their faces smeared with red or yellow ochre, are hideous in the extreme. Miss Sprigg's devotion and missionary zeal are worthy of the admiration of her fellow-Christian Endeavorers in all lands.

THE BETTER WAY.

A few years ago the Presbyterian Foreign Missionary Board made a determined and persistent effort to enlist the Christian Endeavor Societies of the denomination in its work and to secure larger contributions from them. The results have been most gratifying, the contributions having increased more than eight-fold in seven years, or from $5,264 in 1891 to $42,650 in 1897. It is the recognized principle of Christian Endeavor Societies to give through their own denominational church channels. The expenses of the Endeavor Society are very light. There is no organization of young people that spends so little upon itself and gives away so large a proportion of its receipts. The United Society of Christian Endeavor never asks a penny for help. Is it not better, then, to spend the time in making a vigorous effort to enlist the young people in missionary giving than to complain of them, as is sometimes done, for having conventions of their own, or an occasional "ice cream festival"? The former method, we believe, is the more productive, and the benevolent organization that adopts it, as the American Missionary Association has done at its annual meetings and in other ways, will reap the largest results in the future affection and gifts of the young people.

Among Our Sabbath-Schools.

LINCOLN MEMORIAL SABBATH.

Some years ago the American Missionary Association instituted a method of keeping Lincoln Memorial Sabbath in commemoration of President Lincoln's birthday. The Sabbath nearest the date of his birthday, February 12th, was selected, and concert exercise appropriate to the occasion or similar leaflets were circulated among the Sunday-schools. Correspondence was had with pastors and superintendents widely throughout the country. The purpose of the day was twofold.

First it was hoped that lessons of civic responsibility and Christian patriotism would be impressed upon the young people in our Congregational Sabbath-schools through such a service.

Another purpose of the day was to secure from the young people of the Sunday-schools individual gifts for the support of the work which the American Missionary Association is doing among the peoples whose name and history naturally gather about the life of Abraham Lincoln. Envelopes and leaflets were furnished upon application of superintendents. It was hoped that the young people would in this way gain a greater enthusiasm for the work among the needy millions of our own land.

This year the result was astonishing. More than forty thousand young people and children in our Congregational Sunday-schools indicated by correspondence their determination to keep Lincoln Memorial Sabbath. The schools taking up the idea and joining in this splendid fellowship of missionary enthusiasm and interest reached across the continent and included all classes from the crowded Sunday-schools of Northern cities to the humble little gatherings in the cabins of the South. In financial return the day was somewhat of a disappointment. It was the day of the great snowstorm which swept clear across the country. Few were in attendance upon the Sunday-schools, but the enthusiasm in Lincoln Memorial Sabbath and in the completion of the work to which Mr. Lincoln and so many heroes have given their lives which is being secured through the American Missionary Association was evidently deep and sincere.

From letters received, we gather the following expression of interest in the mission fields. There are evidences of genuine sacrifice on the part of those who contributed to the success of the day. One little fellow from the Joseph K. Brick School of Enfield, N. C., enclosed a somewhat worn Canadian silver coin. He said "I did not put this coin in because it was not so valuable as an American coin or because it was so worn. I put it in because it was all I had. If it will not bring the full value I want it to bring all that it is worth, and wish it all to go to the American Missionary Association."

Obituary.

A PIONEER WORKER GONE.

Miss Hannah L. Fitts, of Candia, N. H., died at the home of her brother, Rev. J. H. Fitts, Newfields, N. H., Jan. 5th. She engaged in the work of the A. M. A. in 1866. The next year she was appointed to Wilmington, N.C., where for twenty-one years she served as teacher with rare devotion and fidelity, winning universal respect and love. With great reluctance she gave up her position when health failed, but with unfailing interest she freely devoted her remaining strength to her former pupils, securing student aid and keeping up a most inspiring and helpful correspondence with them. It is wonderful how one so frail could accomplish so much. Suddenly, unexpectedly, in the midst of great usefulness—her last work and plans being in behalf of her loved people suffering from the race troubles in Wilmington—she was called to higher service. Her monument is in the noble, Christian lives of many who delight "to rise up and call her blessed."

A. E. F.

Miss Harriet A. Brown died in the New York Hospital, New York City, Jan. 13, 1899. Miss Brown had been for eighteen and a half years a missionary at Santee Normal Training School for Indians at Santee Agency, Nebraska. She had had charge of the Bird's Nest in which a considerable number of the smaller pupils found their home. She was the house mother. She was greatly loved by all the missionaries as she was a woman of beautiful character. Her influence among the Indians was by no means confined to the school. She often found her way to their tepees, and gained the confidence of Indian women especially, helping them in their home life.

Miss Brown will be greatly missed in this mission field, but she will still live in the hearts and lives of the people to whom she gave herself a "living sacrifice."
